Large global shortage of nurses (5.9 million) projected to grow to 13 million by 2030

Multiple Factors Driving Nursing Shortage

Aging Population Driving Increased Demand

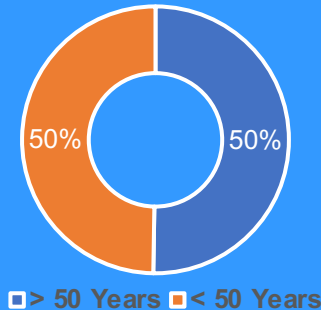

U.S. Population Aged 65+ More Days Spent in Hospital

3x for 65+
4x for 75+

Retiring Nurses Reducing Labor Supply

- Early retirements due to burnout
 - Before 2020, studies showed 60% of nurses were affected by burnout – since COVID-19, has grown to 90%
- ~50% RNs are 50+
- 1M+ RNs expected to retire by 2030

Bottlenecks in Education

- Shortage of faculty and many are looking to retire in next decade
- High cost of education deters students pursuing the profession
- In 2019, US nursing schools turned away over 80,000 qualified applicants due to nurse faculty shortages and insufficient resources
